Religion	Growth in moral responsibility toward self, others and the environment flows from a strengthening of personal character, fostered by a prayerful relationship with God in the community of the church.  Articulate ways that Jesus' life, death and resurrection give hope to the Christians in their daily life.	The relationship between God and the People of God is a relationship of covenant, expressed through the Old and New Testaments . This covenantal relationship has enduring implications for the way Christians and Jews live their lives.	With Jesus as our model, Christians are called to respect the uniqueness and diversity of creation, particularly the poor and marginalised.  God, who is triune mystery and beyond human understanding, can be grappled with through relationship, language, image, symbol, ritual and music.	With Jesus as model, Christians are called to respect the uniqueness and diversity of creation, particularly the poor and marginalised. We are Mission  The relationship between God and the People of God is a relationship of covenant, expressed through the Old and New Testaments . Advent and Christmas
